Reference: FOI 485 Freedom of Information Request

Thank you for your emails, which we received on 19 June and 20 July 2023. Your request has been handled under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

You asked us:

For information on how many complaints concerning a probationer's disability or long-term illness were refused by the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman (PPO) in the 2021/2022 business period.

Our response:

The only time the PPO would refuse to investigate an eligible complaint is outlined in our terms of reference at paragraph 20 (<https://www.ppo.gov.uk/about/vision-and-values/terms-of-reference/>), which says:

“The Ombudsman may decide not to accept a complaint otherwise eligible for investigation, or to discontinue any ongoing investigation, where they consider that no worthwhile outcome can be achieved, or the complaint raises no substantial issue.”

Between April 2021 and March 2022, the PPO used the terms from paragraph 20 to five probation complaints. However, none of these were related to a probationer's disability or long-term illness.

You have the right to appeal against our response if you think it is incorrect. Details can be found in the 'How to Appeal' section attached at the end of this letter.

The Prisons and Probation Ombudsman (PPO) carries out independent investigations into complaints and deaths in custody. The detailed role and responsibilities of the PPO are set out in our office's Terms of Reference. The PPO has three main duties:

- to investigate complaints made by prisoners, young people in detention (prisons and secure training centres), offenders under probation supervision and individuals detained under immigration powers (detained individuals)
- to investigate deaths of prisoners, young people in detention, approved premises' residents and detained individuals due to any cause, including any apparent suicides and natural causes
- to investigate deaths of recently released prisoners that occur within 14 days of release from prison (except homicide)

The purpose of these investigations is to understand what happened, to correct injustices and to identify learning for the organisations whose actions we oversee so that the PPO makes a significant contribution to safer, fairer custody and offender supervision.

We may use or share your data only to the necessary extent when conducting our independent investigations in the exercise of our official authority. We will share your data with third parties (e.g. the prison) in order to make sure the information is accurate; to prevent or detect failings; and to identify lessons learnt. We may sometimes need to share your data with third parties if required by law. We only keep your personal data for as long as it is needed, as set out in our data retention policy. If you need any further information about how your data is used, please contact us.

How to Appeal

Internal Review

If you are not satisfied with this response, you have the right to an internal review. The handling of your request will be looked at by someone who was not responsible for the original case, and they will make a decision as to whether we answered your request correctly.

If you would like to request a review, please write or send an email to the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman's office within two months of the date of this letter, at the following address:
